JUTE BAG

Jute is the second most important vegetable fiber after cotton due to its versatility. Jute is used chiefly to make cloth for wrapping bales of raw cotton, and to make sacks and coarse cloth. The fibers are also woven into curtains, chair coverings, carpets, area rugs, hessian cloth, and backing for linoleum.

In terms of usage and production, jute is second only to cotton: it is easy to grow and has a high yield. Derived from the plant family, Sparrmanniaceae, the fibres are long, silky and golden brown in colour and can be spun into coarse, durable yarns. It is typically used to make burlap, hessian or gunny cloth fabric and turned into sacking. Jute is a great all-rounder: it's cost-effective, environmentally friendly and versatile.

CANVAS & COTTON BAG

Canvas can mean different things to different people. In the context of painting, the word 'canvas' means a fabric used as a painting surface. The difference is that sometimes the canvas is made from cotton fibres and other times from linen fibres. Each material is worth looking at in more detail.

Cotton is a soft, fluffy fibre that grows in a boll or protective capsule around the seeds of cotton plants. The plant is native to the Americas, Africa and India and is most often spun into yarn or thread to create a soft, breathable textile - the chances are you are wearing some cotton right now. device cases and shoes.

DENIM / JEANS

Denim is a sturdy cotton warp-faced twill textile in which the weft passes under two or more warp threads. This twill weaving produces the familiar diagonal ribbing of the denim that distinguishes it from cotton duck.

NON WOVEN

Nonwoven fabrics is a fabric-like material made from long fibers, bonded together by chemical, mechanical, heat or solvent treatment. The term is used in the textile manufacturing industry to denote fabrics, such as felt, which are neither woven nor knitted. Nonwoven materials typically lack strength unless densified or reinforced by a backing. In recent years, nonwovens have become an alternative to polyurethane foam.
